‘Multidisciplinarity and Computer Science: are there generic problems to be solved?’

by Sir Philip Campbell PhD, inaugural Springer Nature Visiting Professor 2018-19, at the Marsilius-Kolleg on 10 May 2019 from 09:00 am to 01:00 pm.

About this workshop:

The workshop was part of the Springer Nature Visiting Professorship 2018-19.

The participants explored opportunities and challenges arising in the practice of multidisciplinary research, with particular focus on research involving computer science. They included interdisciplinary issues of diverse research cultures, concepts, language, the formulation of research problems, publication, and incentives and prestige that differ between disciplines. After an introductory overview, the discussion was led by the workshop participants, who brought examples of multidisciplinary research and the challenges to the workshop.

Sir Philip Campbell PhD served as editor-in-chief of the journal Nature from 1995 till 2018. In July 2018 he took over the position of editor-in-chief of Springer Nature Publishing.

'Researcher's communications, public perceptions and public trust'

by Sir Philip Campbell PhD, inaugural Springer Nature Visiting Professor 2018-19,
at the Marsilius-Kolleg on 8 May 2019 from 09:00 am to 01:00 pm.

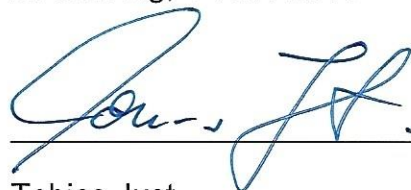

About this workshop:

The workshop was part of the Springer Nature Visiting Professorship 2018-19.

The participants explored areas of research that are publicly controversial, factors that underlie the controversies, and ways in which researchers and their institutions have successfully and unsuccessfully addressed the issues. They developed recommendations for how researchers should be engaging in public debates. There was a contribution by the head of Germany's Science Media Centre, Volker Stollorz.

Sir Philip Campbell PhD served as editor-in-chief of the journal Nature from 1995 till 2018. In July 2018 he took over the position of editor-in-chief of Springer Nature Publishing.
